Good to Go
College & Career Ready
There’s a saying that 80 PERCENT OF SUCCESS IS SHOWING UP.

And while there is more to it than showing up – hard work and perseverance, for example – success in school just isn’t possible if you’re not there.

If you’re not in class, you can’t make the grade, and if you don’t make the grade, you don’t graduate. If you don’t graduate, you can’t be “good to go,” or G2G, for college or a career.

Being G2G means attending high school at least 92 percent of the time.

Did you know?

• Your ninth-grade attendance record can be used to predict whether you graduate from high school or end up dropping out.
• Attendance is even more important than test scores in determining how well you’ll do.

So we’ve covered the first step: You have to come to school. Step two is to get to school on time.

Did you know?

• Being five minutes late to class each morning adds up to 900 minutes over the course of an academic year. That’s 15 hours, more than a half a week of school.

If you’re struggling to get to school by the morning’s first bell, talk to your guidance counselor or another adult you trust about managing your time so you can be in the know... and good to go.

MISSING A DAY OF SCHOOL IS LIKE GIVING UP A DAY’S PAY.

Everyone gets sick or has an emergency once in a while. But the more you make excuses, the more you compromise your future.
